HEAT YOUR FISH HOUSE - SAFELY!

The following types of heaters are recommended for heating fish houses:

Vent Free Heater with Oxygen Depletion Sensor (ODS)

This heater usually uses infrared technology for the heating element. The ODS will shut off the heating unit if oxygen levels get low.

Vent-Free

Direct Vent Heater - Direct Vent (DV)

This heater has a sealed combustion chamber and vents all combustion products through the sidewall and uses combustion air from outside the fish house.

Direct Vent

Conventional Vent Space Heater

This heater has a vent that goes up through the roof of a fish house and requires fresh air for combustion to be brought in from the outside.

Conventional Vent

Thousands of Minnesotans take to the ice for recreational fishing every year. However, annually sportsmen are needlessly injured or killed by improper use of heaters in fish houses. These injuries and deaths are often caused by carbon monoxide from unvented or poorly vented propane heaters. Used correctly, propane is a safe and effective fuel for home and recreational use.

QUICK TIPS FOR FISH HOUSE SAFETY

- NEVER USE -sunflower type heaters. They are not recommended for use in fish houses. Most are approved for outdoor use only and have no safety systems to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning. Use outdoors only!
- Only use heaters that are listed as or approved for use in your fish house.
- Follow manufacturers' installation recommendations.
- Check all gas connections for leaks.
- Keep propane cylinders OUTSIDE.

HAPPY FISHING!
